Class History

The Fall of 1918 witnessed the arrival at Kingston Hill of the customary group of grown-up high school children, eagerly in search of an education. Not at once, however, could we organize as a class, for most of us found ourselves incorporated into Uncle Sam's S. A. T. C.

After Armistice Day, and the disbanding of the S. A. T. C., we returned in January, one hundred and twenty-five strong, to take up college life in real earnest. We quickly showed up our rivals, the Sophomores, by defeating them in basketball and in debating. Fortunately for them the S. A. T. C. had prevented the customary rope pull and gridiron clash in the fall. We further demonstrated our athletic prowess by furnishing our quota to the varsity basketball and baseball squads.

We enjoyed our social events, too—a Freshman Informal at Lippitt, and a Class Banquet at Chin Lee's—in spite of Sophomore pranks.

As Sophs we bowed to the Freshies in the rope pull, but held them scoreless in football, and trounced them in basketball. In debating we succumbed to yearling oratory, but came back strong with four men on the varsity debate squad, and we had our representatives in all branches of varsity athletics.

Our Hop was unusually successful, as was our Second Annual Banquet held in East Hall. At the end of this second year we were so unfortunate as to lose our Honorary Member, Miss Harriet L. Merrow, by her retiring from teaching after twenty-five years of service.

In our Junior Year we exhibited our characteristic originality and enthusiasm by instituting Junior Week for the first time at Rhode Island State. Our Junior Prom, the principal feature of The Week, was unusually successful, as was our Commencement Ball to the Seniors.

Now in our Senior Year, with our laurels won, we have assumed a becoming dignity and maturity of thought and action. Regretfully we sense the rapid passing of the time which will so soon bring us to Commencement, and a parting from familiar scenes and faces. Yet as the largest class ever graduated from Rhode Island State, we still have our part to play as loyal sons and daughters, in the larger world upon which we are entering.

Glee Club (1) (2); Commencement Play (1); "Beacon" Board (2) (3) (4); Junior Week Play (3); $\Phi \Delta$ Play (4); Class Basketball (4).

One hundred percent college spirit! Grace is always right on hand for either hard work or a frolic. Her graceful dancing won her popularity in Lippitt Hall since the S. A. T. C. Always good-natured and happy she was never known to refuse to do her share and more. Our co-ed chemist, cheer-leader, and dramatic star has won for herself a host of loyal friends on the campus. She is one of our clever actresses, always at ease behind the footlights, either as the decorous matron or the smart and jazzy flapper. She is an excellent student and shows the "eds" that the "co-eds" can really get away with Applied Science. A real all-round girl is our Grace. She can adapt herself so well that we know R. I. will soon be hearing of her success in the business world.

Class Baseball (1) (2); Corporal (1), Sergeant (2), Lieutenant (3); Librarian Chem. Society (3), Treasurer Chem. Society (4).

Alvan Jason is an ardent devotee of foreign languages and travels extensively in Arctic regions. As an automobile mechanic he wins the elastic crowbar; and as an imitator of the long-tailed tribe, one look at him would convince you that Darwin was right. "Punk" is a member of the progressive chemistry course where he labors assiduously (???) He has made several new resolutions for the coming year and we hope that these will not be shattered.

Student Council (1); Class Debating (1) (2); Sergeant (2); Varsity Debating (3); Band Leader (3) (4); Class Treasurer (3) (4); Lieutenant (4).

This sorrel-topped individual came all the way from Warren to be an aspiring chemist. He is a charter member of the Delta Tau Lambda (Down-the-Liners) and his operations are facilitated by the use of Wilcox's jitneys. He has preyed upon this peaceful community with conglomerations of rancid music in the form of orchestras and bands. The discrepancy of sounds issuing forth from this collection of infernal machines he has got together are only known to those who have tried to keep step to those lingering strains of murdered music.

ALFRED GOULD BENJAMIN "Ben"

East Greenwich, R. I.
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

"Ben" is one of the few remaining "Old Guard" who have returned to us after completing their work for "Uncle Sam." He numbered, way back in '15, such oldtimers as Leboeuf, Creedon, Hopkins, etc., for his friends. In '17 he enlisted in the Navy at Newport. He was a member of the mystery ship, the U. S. S. Whittemore, which cruised the western coast of Africa. It was a submarine decoy elaborately equipped with electrical apparatus so designed as to detect submarines by means of sound waves. When "Ben" returned in the Fall of '19, he brought with him a ready stock of electrical knowledge which will stand him in good stead in his chosen work.

Introducing another cake-eater from the "Tonic" town. Over three years ago when this lanky youth embarked from the "city of opportunity(?)" and presented himself at the portals of our institution he was far from the finished product which we now behold in the guise of a Senior. It is a well-known fact that Joe has great ambitions to be a C. E., and in the course of human events we haven't any doubt that it will be realized, but to encourage these ideals he has found it so often necessary to hit the trail that leads to the fair city to the south of us that he is now known as one of our most consistent "down-the-liners." Joe was a distinguished member of the far-famed S. A. T. C. and rose to the rank of corporal the next year, when he also received a ducking during the rope pull. At present his vocal powers are giving considerable aid to our hard working Glee Club whose star of renown and fame is now in the ascent. Joe has always steered clear of the fair enticers of Davis and South, and if he succeeds as a C. E. as well as he succeeded in avoiding the damsels across the way, then without any question his future as an engineer is assured.

"Jules" is very musical and spends a great deal of his time at the piano, playing (in the Key of C). "Jack" is deeply engrossed in the theory of direct and alternating currents, but he finds time to sell them at the village store, and thus gained valuable practical experience. He says he sells Dodge Cars in the summer, but that he doesn't believe in the "two hands on the wheel rule" after dark.

"Louie" was first seen on Kingston Heights as a Non-S. A. T. C. student, and from the start showed his skill as a leader in the battles of the Wells House. With the beginning of the college year in January "Louie" became prominent in making athletic honors for the Class of '22 and maintaining them for four years. "Jazz" should have been his middle name as all "the latest," both dance and song, were introduced by him. "Jazz" was a sure gloom-and-blues-disperser even though his favorite selection was "Alcoholic Blues." At 6:45 P. M. each evening, for two years, "Louie" could be heard leading the "South Hall Scullion Trio" up Hurricane Avenue. The toughest night of nights for him was Sunday evening when he could be heard saying, "Where was I a week ago tonight?" (Whitman). We all feel quite certain that he will make good, as his many speeches in "Reinforced Concrete" have even led "Pa" to be convinced. His ability to make friends, which is due to his "jabber jabber" qualities, will lead him to the position of President (of the dance hall managers) in the near future.

He is a faithful attendant at all our athletic games. He has also created a reputation here as an interior decorator. Witness his career. "Wally's" chief passion seems to be the maintenance of a private conservatory at his home. In his avid search for horticultural knowledge, every institution of learning, no doubt, has received requests for information, booklets, and the like. We do not hesitate to predict that "Wally" will give to the world many new and hitherto unheard-of-species of flowers. Good luck, Wally!

Beginning with his activities in his class, he has rounded out his career by a most active part on the campus and gridiron. With the advent of post-war sports, he joined the football squad and has the notable record of playing in every game, and has topped his football career by earning his due reward as leader of this year's eleven. His numerous activities emphasize the fact that "Beef" has been one of the most popular men that has ever entered R. I. State.

"Our Yarvo" arrived in this combination town and hamlet just four years ago from Bulkeley High School, New London. Since his appearance on the hill we have no need for alarm clocks. He has been our faithful caller, early mornings, and also our house electrician. Beware of this young man for he is always thinking (of vacations). His limousine trips along the Atlantic coasts from the Pier to New London have saved him a small fortune. We all know his ability as an orator and manager, and his 20th Century inventive prowess will place him among the leaders of Tom Edison's art. He is a faithful student and of a conscientious nature. These sterling qualities should always aid him toward the goal of success.

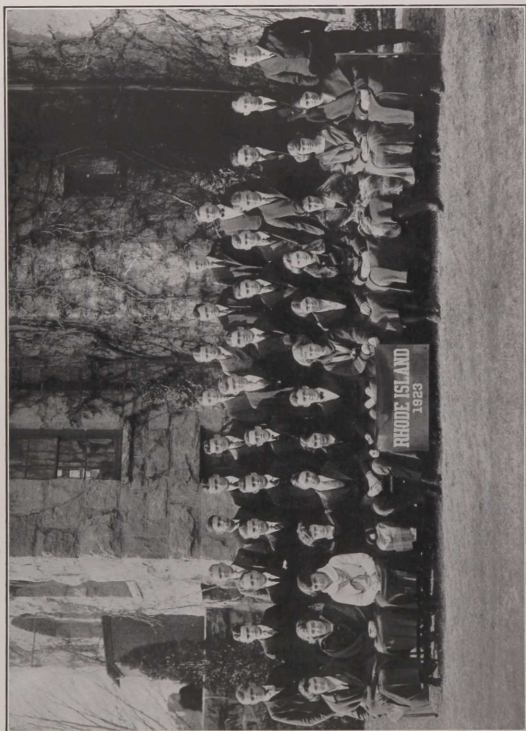

ON perusing the contents of this volume, it reminded the Editor of the many little things that have contributed to its success. The book would be certainly incomplete without some mention of the willing and loyal aid that has been rendered by its many friends both inside and outside the college.

Through the help of the student body and the faculty, more specially along financial lines, the GRIST has been able to make its appearance again on the Campus.

We are indebted to Mr. E. A. Tully for his fine photographic work, and mention is also due A. Norman, '24, for his contribution in this line.

To Baker, Jones, Hausauer, Inc., we owe in more ways than one, the success of this volume. Their efficient co-operation in the engraving, printing and binding, has facilitated the work ever so much.

Space does not permit the complete enumeration of many others who have contributed in various ways, so to these we take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation.

History of the Class

In September, 1919, we came to Rhode Island,—a mob of grown-up high-schoolers, one hundred and sixty strong, determined to make a name for ourselves in college. First we dragged the Sophs through Underwood's and repeated the stunt the next year, this time dousing the Freshies in an icy bath. Our first year we we tied 1922 in a 0-0 football game, but as Sophs we beat the Freshmen 6-0. Our argumentative ability showed up in the annual debating contests; we were successful both years. Although defeated as Freshmen, in basketball, we redeemed ourselves the following year by nosing 1924 out of first place in the Athletic Carnival, and coming out on top, 67½-65. Our Freshman Informals provided the college with good times, and our Hop, the next year proved most successful. Every year we have done our best to support Rhode Island, contributing our share of men to the teams and to all college activities. Now that we're Juniors we realize our responsibilities, not only as careful guardians of 1925 but as future Seniors, worthy upholders of the White and Blue.

While here he has developed remarkably as a distance runner, due, no doubt, to his faithful practice on the cornet and his frequent use of the road "down-the-line." How would we ever get along in the dorm without the "classez-vous" she is going to attend, or the "book parts" she is going to take with her! As for "Mim's" love affairs, they have been frequent and serious—but the very tall, dark-haired man with the rosy cheeks hasn't come into view yet. She has the art of obtaining good marks with very little effort. We all know that she excels in one course, and that is "Reading." It is given seven days a week with a lifetime of credits. She hasn't told us yet, just what she intends to do when she leaves our halls of learning, but we know she will succeed.

She's a careful, conscientious worker, too, with more perseverance and stick-to-it-iveness than most of us can boast. "Dot's" a day-student now, going and coming via "bus," but we see her at classes, and now and then an untimely squeal down the hot-air pipe announces that "Gloria's" staying over for the basketball game. We wonder why??? When Doris lived in Davis she reigned as official coiffeur for the dorm, and for hours before a "big" dance we stood in line for an appointment with Miss Dat(e)son, curling irons and hairpins. We miss her, but she'll be back next year we know.

When "Dick" stepped onto the campus all he had to do was to renew acquaintances with his many friends from "Tech." When the Fresh-Soph football game was to be played, George was the logical man to make arrangements for it. During his first year, "Dick" was studious and showed up prominently in math, chem, and oratory(?). The fair sex was to him a negative quantity, but when he came back for his second and third years, it was noticed that there was a big attraction in Providence which took him home many week-ends. In spite of this, "Dick" is determined to be an E. E., and is a real live wire when the current is turned on.

"How many amps did you say?" "Five." "Gee, I only got three for my answer," and then the work of reconstruction begins for the unlucky fellow whose answer does not jibe with that of this bright exponent of E. E. Although Francis has been a traveler for two years and his stays here of definite length, his knowledge of electricity and its applications has made for him a reputation not to be denied. Quiet and reserved, studious and willing to work is this chap who daily comes down the pike from Providence. Notwithstanding his aversion for the opposite sex he became ensnared in the wiles of one Davis Hall enchantress and were it not for the aid of a few friendly hands he would have been left stranded on the shoals, and his life as a student would have ended then and there. He has great ambitions to be an E. E., and if his work in college along these lines is taken as a criterion, it won't be long after he graduates that his ambitions will be fulfilled.

If there are any in this institution who do not know "Tim," they had better make his acquaintance immediately, and so complete their education. One of the great handicaps of the "Senator," as he is sometimes called, is the fact that he comes from Westerly. Also he was a day student for the first two years. Anyone who has heard any of our "Senator's" orations has been thrilled to the extent of becoming speechless. And this is not all, for he is one of our rising dramatists, and it would do well for J. M. Barrie to look him up as a leading man for his plays. For all his fun and Charlie Chaplin appearance, his upper story is not a vacuum, but contains much solid matter, as he is one of our smartest students. Here's good health and great success to you "Tim!"

Anyone who does not know him very well would think him immune to the charms of the fairer sex, but his closer friends know of his reputation in Woonsocket, which is a good one, and which would certainly break down one's first impression. During this last fall several engineers returned to school with Fords permanently attached to their outfits. However, such was to be expected of their ability. But when an Aggie joins the list of those who park their cars outside of the famous roadhouse, East Hall, it is time that his affairs are investigated. Careful inquiry elicited the information that "Swede" McCaughy was the owner of this "trial and tribulation"; that he was an expert driver, and had demonstrated his ability to drive over the Wakefield road under any conditions. However, "Mack" has not spent all of his time tinkering with his car. Since coming from Central Falls High School he has made a good record in his class work and has taken an active part in all Aggie doings. "Mack" is rather a quiet fellow, not socially inclined, but he is popular and well liked by his close friends. He is rather reticent about his private life, but it is rumored that there is a girl at home awaiting his return. We know, personally, that his visits to the Guild have not been unproductive of results. But then who could withstand the glamour that surrounds a successful Aggie, especially one who owns a Ford?

"Let's go, Mac, time for the bus!" is the cry that usually wings through the corridors of East Hall every evening about half-past four. Everyone is acquainted with this likable chap who travels daily from Providence. Certainly, "Mac" has never allowed travel to interfere with his work, as his standing in classes well testifies, for he is recognized as one of the guiding stars in the Class of '23. Although "Mac" endeavors to stick to the straight and narrow path, "ces amours" have often caused him to deviate, and notwithstanding his efforts to keep them secret, there is a little bird who tells us all about these affairs of the heart, much to his annoyance. "Mac" has a secret ambition to become an E. E., truly a high ideal in this year of mechanics and thermo, but if we are any kind of a prophet his "ambish" will soon be realized.

"Mac" hails from Providence, and if family heredity doesn't lose its hold on the State House, you're going to see his name on the honor roll of politicians sometime in the near future. "Happy" claims to be the only successful heartbreaker in college, having a tally of twenty to his credit. He's full of pep, and as a jazz king he holds the only crown. "Mac" is an engineer, and during a rock-pulling contest held on Theta Chi lawn last spring showed unrealized judgment in claiming that "as an engineer he preferred burying what might otherwise occupy unnecessary space above ground." His basis for this reason was that "energy not expended is energy saved." "Mac's ability in thermo leads us to believe that his success will be based on installing a heating apparatus capable of extracting heat units from a cake of "Ice."

The night is dark, very dark, the lights of Hurricane Avenue have long been dimmed, but nevertheless a dim light still burns up in Reynolds' room at 55 East. No, he does not burn the midnight oil in pursuit of the mysteries of the inclined plane. Rather indeed his motto is "Don't let your studies interfere with your education." Not that Reynolds does not study, for he has already received a degree at the Guild night school. It is on account of this night work that the light in Reynolds' room still burns on. Man cannot live on love alone, and you can take "Fred's" word that a four-mile hike five nights a week requires something more substantial than just sentiment. Not that Fred is a woman-hater, but that he has found out that prunes, bread and milk go good as a midnight feast. Again the night is dark, even darker than before, for at last the seemingly insatiable appetite of Reynolds is satisfied; soon all is in slumber and Reynolds dreams of "down-the-line."

This face, intelligent and handsome, left Providence Tech some time in the spring before giving its pleasing appearance to our campus in the fall. "Zeke" during his first two years was one of those famous birds, denoted by Coach Keaney as having one foot in Kingston and the other on a Providence banana peel. But on coming to this year, his 3d, he decided to go to college, so instead of having a suitcase under one arm and suit box under the other, tripping blithesomely on his way to the train, he wends his weary way to problems in mechanics. Although this sweet young thing has never fallen for the weaker sex as personified by our co-eds, the gentle reader can perhaps explain the wonderful raiment the boy possesses. One look at this Brother Kuppenheimer determines whether the "keen guys" will wear four-button suits or cuffless burlap this spring. Never was there a more loyal son of Italy attending our college than the bright, ever-smiling day student "Johnnie Dundee." As may be surmised from his nickname, "Johnnie" has acquired a "keen" reputation for his expert (?) knowledge of pugilism. Truly "Johnnie Dundee" never lost a fight yet that his protegee, our own "Sal" ever claimed as a defeat. And as a dispenser of the "oil" "Sal" is nonpareil. He intends to follow that old but useful advice "Go West, young man, go West!" that Horace Greeley advocated. Let us hope that "Sal" will find in the far West, among the "broncho busters," his life's success.

That twinkle in his eye and that instantaneous change of expression have made him famous and popular on the campus, especially with the ladies, but the ladies are not worrying "Jim" very much, for his ambition is to own and operate several greenhouses. Whatever he may undertake he will make successful by that conscientious, persevering spirit which puts his studies across.

She's a carefree young lady—never worries, and why should she? She always has a good time wherever she goes. And her appetite—oh, she likes to eat! "Miss Shedd, would you like some more cornflakes?" "Yes, please, just a few." Don't mind us "Sheddie," we don't mean it.

After winning the war, this exponent of modern haberdashery dropped off the Pier Special and upon ascending Kingston Hill was duly sworn into Aggiedom by Prof. Adams. He immediately proceeded to make himself popular by absenting himself from all parts of our "co-edery," and later by joining the Golf Club. He has been known to go "down-the-line" quite frequently, and for this reason he was made a charter member of $\Delta T A$. A hearty cackler, a wicked line, and a pair of black riding boots are his big assets.

"Oh, he's alright, but kinda quiet. Not much of a mixer, I guess." This is the type that Smith appeared to be when he came here from Tech in 1919. During his Freshman year he kept his mouth shut, obeyed the Freshman rules, and tipped his hat to the Seniors. In his Sophomore year he was mentioned in the Beacon as having made the Soph debating team and also as having been elected as President of the Campus Club. Incidentally, he joined Professor Keaney's physical culture class, but strenuous physical exercise requires scuffs and plenty of them. So "Archie" remedied the situation by going to visit "down-the-line" every Sunday. Not that his visits were limited to once a week, for it has been stated that the siren's call caused the lid to be clamped down on the physics and calculus books as many as five nights in succession. At the beginning of his Junior year, Smith decided what with the hardships of the four-mile hike to Wakefield, and the East Hall fare, that he would be better off married. Of course, when we heard this we were much surprised. Some of the profs dolefully shook their heads and said "it can't be done." Most of us agreed with them and thought he was a fool. However, Smith keeps on being "alright, not much of a mixer and kinda quiet."

Gaze, ladies and gentlemen, on the solemn countenance of "the man without a country." "Art" hails from the beautiful island of Block Island, where all is bliss and happiness and the police force works on holidays and Sundays—during the summer. He never goes "down-the-line" or visits Davis Hall, and although he is seen at the library once in a while on an evening, he usually leaves after finding material for a speech for "Turkeyneck." Block Island will have the best railroad of any country in the world when "Art" returns with his sheepskin and his experience gained in the construction of the Chickenville-Slocum Railroad.

She's a born executive and manager, and a worker, with a will and a way. What would this Ella do without the other Ella, and what would the other Ella do without this one? APPLIED SCIENCE

During the first two years that "Johnny" was here, we knew but little about him, since he spent most of his time in research work in the chemical lab. However, although he was not prominent socially, he soon succeeded in his chosen line of work. After months of careful research and analysis of different substances such as H_2S , SOS , and $AWOL$, Mr. John Axel Swahn completed his formula for Swahnsdown soap. This soap is quaranteed to take the enamel off the bathtub and the skin off an elephant's back. With the proceeds of the sale of his soap formula, "Johnny" took up research work at the Guild. Here, as before, he was successful. Girls were to him as an open book. At chess, he knew their every move; at dancing, he knew every wriggle; at canoeing, he was their master. From time to time he has varied his course of study from brunettes to blondes. At the present moment of writing, he is decidedly blonde. However, "Johnny" has realized the value of a good training in all lines of work, so he has now become a regular member of the Class of 1923.

This large and brawny gentleman came to Rhode Island State for lack of a better place to go. While here he became inspired with the ambition to become a chemist. He has been a faithful student and he has already gained a large knowledge of all branches of the industry. He is an organic shark and has a novel method of learning the various reactions. He likens graphic formulae to human face, and calls the various radicals, eyes, ears, etc. During his Sophomore year he succumbed to the wiles of a fair co-ed, but it was only a temporary infatuation and he has since overcome the handicap.

Believing that he needs practical work as well as theory in his education, "Louie" is broadening out his mind by doing all the college electrical work especially in Davis and Magnolia. In this role of electrician, Louis achieves greatest popularity, and never do the magic words Davis, or Magnolia fail to bring him assistants in throngs. "Louie" has another year left on the Hill, but we know he will make good here and in after life and will always be a loyal son of R. I. State.

Philip Leo better known as "Pat," arrived in Kingston in the Fall of '19 on the "Fall Reeve special" and has been raving about it ever since—that is, about Fall River. He started off with a bang and knocked everything cold until on a football trip to Maine, one of the wild, wild women from N. H. picked him up and started him on the downward path. "Pat" then experimented on studying for finals in his Sophomore year, and found, much to his satisfaction, that he could "hold" more under the trees with the birdies or in a canoe on Thirty Acre. In his Junior year another one of our co-eds tumbled when she saw him in a basketball suit. He is one of our promising athletes, being a good football man and rather clever at shooting baskets. He has also tried his luck as a shirt salesman, in which capacity he was very successful hooking about every gent in the college for at least one of his burlap shirts.

This boy from "Clam City" in all his glory landed in Kingston in 1919, soon finding out how high a Freshman rated in these parts. It was not long, however, before "Spud" gained attention by his "All-American" smile and good humor. A strong supporter of that famous Aggie course we find him to be, although studies do not bother him. Possibly it is due to the weakness he has for the associations with the fair sex, for in checking up on his actions we find that there are not many he hasn't been out with. Nevertheless, we know the "Wop's" enthusiasm for agriculture, and trust that he will not let his weak point overpower him before he reaches the road to success.

ATHLETICS

Coach Keaney

Coach Keaney came to Kingston from Everett, Mass., where he had developed strong teams in all branches of athletics. Previously he had established an enviable record and reputation as a high school coach while at Woonsocket High.

Upon arriving at Rhode Island in September, 1920, he found about six veterans and a bunch of raw material which was to constitute his 1920 football team. Practice started one week before school opened, and in three weeks, the opening contest with Brown ended with Rhode Island on the short end of the tally. The margin of victory was much smaller than the Brown fans had anticipated, showing that we had a scrappy, fast developing machine.

Although the season didn't show a long string of victories, it was a noted improvement over the previous year's record. The team was beaten by University of Maine, Massachusetts Aggies, and Connecticut Aggies the previous year. The 1920 team was at least able to get a tie score with each of these three.

In basketball we were severely handicapped by the loss by graduation of four of the preceding year's quintet. By hard and consistent work, the coach was able to develop a squad of basket-tossers that made the 1920-1921 season one long to be remembered in the Annals of Rhode Island basketball. In 1919 we won two games out of a possible nine—in 1920 we brought home the bacon eight out of fourteen times. The outstanding features of the season were the double victories over Connecticut and the Harvard victory at Cambridge.

The baseball season dawned and found us with six men from the 1920 team together with considerable green and inexperienced material. The schedule arranged was admitted to be the toughest ever laid out before a Rhode Island State ball team. It included such teams as Holy Cross, Boston College, University of Pittsburgh, and Brown. It also called for a series of seven games in eight days.

We scored over Colby, Connecticut, University of Maine, and Northeastern, but lost the other six games which were played. Inclement weather caused the postponement of three games which looked like certain victories.

In track, however, the biggest advance was made. The team was increased in size from a mere handful of men to an all-around squad of twenty-five or more. The Boston College harriers were the first to bow before our men in a five-mile grind o'er hill and dale.

Massachusetts Aggies were beaten by a margin of ten points in a dual meet, and two weeks after, Connecticut was defeated by 88 points.

The 1920-1921 season has been significant also, in that it has brought us practically complete victory in four branches of sports over our keen rivals from Storrs. An 0-0 contest in football is the sole obstacle in the path of this complete victory.

In voicing our appreciation of the excellent results produced by the coach, we know that we are expressing the whole-hearted sentiments of every undergraduate at the institution.

He has inspired in us a deeper sense of responsibility toward our teams, a keener appreciation of hard, clean playing, and has gained the respect and love of all who have worked for and with him.

MANAGER CONNOLLY
1920 SEASON

The beginning of the 1920 football season found Capt. Eastwood and Coach Keaney early on the job, waiting for the arrival of football candidates. The men had been requested to report for practice a week before the opening of college, and by the middle of the first week a fair-sized squad was on hand, sweating and toiling under the rays of a mid-September sun. The influence of the new coach began to take affect at once, and by the first of the following week, practice was well under way with the prospects of a fairly good team in sight.

Six letter-men from the 1919 team were found to be in college, namely, Capt. Eastwood, Potter, Gardner, Mowry, Turner, and Farnham, the latter being ineligible for this year's team. Johnson and Labree, both members of the 1919 squad, reported soon after the start of the season.

The effect of the new coaching system became noticeable almost immediately, and a bright future was predicted for the team. Coach Keaney had as his assistants Profs. Tyler and Keagan, and these three coaches drove the men night after night until they were whipped into some sort of shape for the coming encounter with Brown. The line charged low and hard, and the backs appeared to be both speedy and elusive, although the teams seemed to lack scoring power, as was evidenced in the daily encounters between the first and second teams.

The first game was the annual game with Brown at Andrews Field and resulted in a 25-0 defeat for Rhode Island. The heavy Brown team showed a greater scoring combination, although our line presented a stiff defense. The game with Wesleyan showed practically the same results. Although putting up a game fight, our team lacked the power to score, while the speedy Wesleyan team succeeded in putting across the touchdowns.

The next week the team journeyed to Maine and battled the heavy Maine team to a 7-7 tie. The Rhode Island boys missed several good chances to score, although they outplayed the Maine boys in every department of the game. Boston University was too much for the home team the following week, and they emerged from the fray with one touchdown to the good.

The game with Union at Schenectady resulted in another 7-7 tie, although the belief is still held by many that Rhode Island should have won, if the officials had been competent. The following week, Rhode Island played another 7-7 tie game; this time with the heavy M. A. C. team which was reputed to be far superior to our team. Great credit, therefore, is due the light Rhode Island team, which succeeded in nearly defeating the strong Aggie combination.

Worcester Tech defeated us 7-0 on the home field in a hard-fought game, and the following week found the team up against Connecticut at Storrs. This proved to be the hardest fought game of the season and ended in a scoreless tie. Four tie games were played during the season.

Never before in the annals of Rhode Island football has there been a more successful season than the season of 1921. For the first time in four long years, the team succeeded in putting across a victory. Much of the credit is due Coach Keaney for his untiring efforts in behalf of football at Rhode Island, for he has developed a machine which was difficult to defeat and to even score upon. The schedule composed by Manager Yarovts was one of the finest ever played by a Rhode Island team.

The first practice of the season was held two weeks before the opening of the college year, and a squad of about thirty appeared in "togs" for the preliminary drill. About fifteen more men reported after the season was fairly under way. Ten letter-men reported for early practice, and with a wealth of material among the Freshman Class, the outlook for a successful season appeared very promising indeed. The addition of Kennedy, an end, and Tobey, a pivot man from Everett, greatly strengthened the team. Simpson and Gilkey, former Somerville High stars, soon showed signs of great football ability that assured them a varsity berth. The former proved to be one of the speediest and hardest hitting backs ever developed at Rhode Island, while the latter showed his mettle both in the backfield and on the line.

A great many shifts took place in the line this year. Capt. Potter was moved from center to guard, to strengthen the guard position, while Tobey was placed in the center position. Connors fitted nicely into one of the tackle positions, while Perry retained his position of the past season at the other tackle. Several new men were tried out at the vacant guard position, but Flynn seemed to work in better than his competitors, and he finished the season at guard. Gardner, a veteran of two years' experience, was kept in the backfield all season while Kirby, a backfield man of the past season, was tried out at end. Totman was also kept at end for the greater part of the season.

The season opened against the Sub-Base at New London, and here the team met one of the hardest fighting elevens in the East. The team did well in holding them to the close score of 13-0. Three full elevens were used in the game. The first college game was played with Brown at Providence, and this year the scrappy Rhode Island team nearly succeeded in chasing away the jinx which has been following it for years. Our team easily outplayed the Brown aggregation, and the score, 6-0 against us, is no indication of the relative strength of the two teams.

Two Maine trips followed a week apart and resulted in two defeats, 9-0 at the hands of Bowdoin, and 7-3 from the University of Maine. Failure to push the pigskin over from the twenty-yard line was the cause of defeat in both these contests. The Maine boys, however, found great difficulty in penetrating the heavy Rhode Island line.

The squad next journeyed to Worcester Tech and passed out a 27-0 licking in return for the defeat suffered at Kingston the year before at the hands of this same aggregation. Tech was never able to get started, and the old score was wiped out in a most decisive manner. Boston University came next on the schedule. During the first half, neither team had the advantage, but in the second half the B. U. team developed a powerful punch and succeeded in pushing over two touchdowns—winning 14-0.

Two home games wound up the season. The team from M. A. C. put up the scrappiest battle of the season and it was only by fighting every minute that Rhode Island managed to emerge the victor. The battle was brimful of thrills, spectacular runs, and daring passes, and the final score stood 7-2 in our favor. The game scheduled with Bates was called off on account of a heavy snowfall down in Maine where the game was to be played.

The season was brought to a close with the 27-21 victory over our old rivals, Connecticut State. At no time during the entire game was the result certain, and only in the last few minutes of play did R. I. score the touchdown that meant victory. The Nutmeggers showed a smashing line attack which was offset by the brilliant broken field running of Johnson and the sure plunges of Gilkey.

The outlook for next year is very promising, as only three of this year's lettermen will be lost by graduation, namely, Capt. Potter, Totman, and Gardner. Coach Keaney has developed such a wealth of material from among the lower classes that there is no doubt but that the places of the retiring players will be quickly filled.

Basketball, 1919-'20

Soon after the close of the football season in November, 1919, Coach Murray issued a call for basketball candidates, and an unusually large squad reported for practice the first two or three nights. One by one the candidates dropped out, and after the first week there were just about enough men remaining to make up two teams for the daily scrimmage between the varsity and second teams. Six veterans of the previous year's team reported, and with these men and a few promising Freshmen, Coach Murray set out to build up a team. The men from the previous year's squad were, Capt. Malloy, Murphy, Lucey, Antulonus, Holden, and Beasley. Hudson and Dunn speedily proved themselves of varsity calibre and were soon playing at the two forward positions. Rudie Kohlberg, who was on the squad two years ago, reported early and showed promise of making good.

The team lined up against Newport Y. M. C. A. in the first game of the season and defeated them 24-18. The next week the team journeyed to Providence and lost to the fast Brown quintet by only a few points. On the next trip Tufts and M. A. C. were met, and we were defeated in both games by close scores.

Connecticut invaded our floor the following week, confident of a victory, but was sent back on the short end of a 29-22 score. The next game was with Boston College, and we were defeated in a rough game by a scant margin. The second game with the Newport Y. M. C. A. was called in the middle of the second half, with Rhode Island in the lead 17-11. Boston College again defeated us, this time on the home floor, the score being 19-17. We were unsuccessful the second time with Brown and Tufts, being defeated in both instances by small margins.

Rhode Island met the strong Worcester team in the final game of the season and gave them a tough battle, but the driving attack of the Worcester team was too much for the Rhode Island defense, and we were defeated 24-12. We were strengthened in the game by Joe Murphy who had just returned to college.

The majority of the game resulted in defeats, but in each case we were defeated by no more than four or five baskets, which shows the relative strength of our team as compared to some of the strongest teams in the East. Capt. "Rope" Malloy was the mainstay of the team all season and played a fine brand of basketball. He also scored the most points for his team. Beasley was close behind in the number of points scored. Hudson, Dunn, and Holden were all forced to stay out of several games on account of injuries which badly crippled us at times. Lucey, Antulonus, and Murphy all finished the season without being seriously injured. "Chet" Coggeshall was allowed to play most of the games and was a valuable asset to the team.

"Rudie" Kohlberg was used in the last three or four games and performed creditably against his heavy opponents. Holden was out of the game for more than half the season, due to an injured knee. Dunn also received an injury to his knee and was forced to be out of one or two games.

Basketball, 1920-'21

The 1920-1921 basketball team closed one of the most successful seasons the college has ever seen. On March 11, 1921, when the men won their fourth straight victory, the team completed its hard schedule. Manager Ford had arranged an unusually hard schedule with such teams as Boston College, Clark, Harvard, and Maine. Long and tedious practice was necessary to prepare for the coming grind. With the exception of Boston College, no team succeeded in defeating ours on the home floor during the season.

When the call for candidates was issued by Coach Keaney, only two veterans were on hand, namely, Lucey and Dunn. Much credit is due the coach for his work in developing such a smooth-working machine from amongst a number of youngsters who had never before played college basketball.

Although the first game played resulted in an overwhelming 87-25 victory over the Providence College team, there was a decided "green" atmosphere about the team, and Coach Keaney set out to administer real basketball dope. As a great number of "subs" were called upon the first part of the season, very little teamwork was noticeable until the middle of the season.

The second game of the year was played with Boston College on the home floor, and this resulted in a 34-26 victory for the visitors. The Boston boys were speedier and more accurate in shooting baskets than were our boys, but they were pushed to the limit in order to win. This proved to be the only defeat of the season on the home floor. Rhode Island won the next game from St. Michael's by the close score of 27-26. The fighting was fierce throughout, with each team in turn taking the lead in the scoring, and the result of the game was in doubt until the final whistle.

Maine was defeated 28-24 the following week on the home floor, and then commenced a run of poor luck away from home. The men had been used to playing with no out-of-bounds on the sides of the courts, and this seemed to bother them on the visiting floors. The team dropped several games in a row and seemed to be always nosed out of a victory at the last moment through a sudden flash of speed by the opponents. The worst defeat of this kind was suffered at the hands of Connecticut, at Storrs, when the Nutmeggers played rings around our team, winning 44-20.

The tide of defeat was stemmed for awhile, however, when we defeated Clark on our own floor, the score being 30-27. The next game was with Connecticut, and this proved to be the most fiercely contested game of the season. Honors remained about even until the last few minutes of play, when the Rhode Island attack led by Tribolet broke down the defense of the Connecticut team and permitted several baskets to be caged. Tribolet led the scoring with 17 points and was closely followed by Hill and Haslam. Chandler and Dunn at guard each played his usual fine game. The score which had stood at 11-11 at the end of the first half was changed to 29-18 in favor of Rhode Island.

The next game was played with Clark at Worcester, and this proved to be the last defeat of the season. The two teams were evenly matched and fought on equal terms until the last four minutes of play, when Smith, the crack Clark center, broke through the Rhode Island defense and caged four baskets, defeating us 38-30.

Northeastern was easily turned back, the score being 37-16, and the next week found us facing Harvard in Hemmingway gymnasium. The teams were pretty nearly evenly matched and the score see-sawed back and forth with neither team gaining great advantage. Our hopes were dashed to pieces when Tribolet was forced to leave the game, but Allan and Rabnowitz proved worthy substitutes, and Rhode Island was able to hold her own. When the final whistle had blown, Rhode Island was declared the winner by a 24-23 score, and an all-night session of celebrating took place on Kingston Hill that evening, despite the rain which lasted throughout.

The final two games on the schedule resulted in victories for Rhode Island, the victory over Tufts being especially sweet as we were defeated by them early in the season. The Tufts team was completely outclassed, and the final result 30-21 in favor of Rhode Island was never in doubt. In the final game of the season the boys from Northeastern were never dangerous and had to be content with a 34-14 defeat.

Thus dropped the curtain on one of the most successful basketball seasons in the history of the college.

MANAGER LA PERCHE
1921 SEASON

Baseball

1920

Immediately upon the completion of the 1920 basketball season Coach Murray issued the first call for baseball practice. The candidates were ordered to report in the "gym," and about thirty veterans and recruits were on hand for the preliminary work.

ASSISTANT MANAGER COKER
1921 SEASON

With Capt. Hudson and "Eke" Turner, varsity pitchers of the year before, and Joe Murphy, a former varsity backstop, the battery positions seemed to be pretty well taken care of. Nordquist, the crack varsity shortstop of the 1919 team, was available as was Greenhalgh, a veteran of pre-war days, and Lucey, Casey, Rhodes, and Whitaker of the 1919 team. Johnson and Coleman, both Freshmen, soon displayed a fine brand of ball which won for them permanent positions on the varsity.

The first game of the season was with Brown at Andrews Field and resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Brunonians, the Rhode Island pitchers being unable to find the plate, and the Brown batsmen slamming everything which came across. The game with Tufts ended in a 3-0 victory for the latter team. Loose fielding was mainly responsible for the runs gained by Tufts. The game with M. A. C. turned out to be a good old slugging contest with the M. A. C. hurlers displaying a slightly better form than the Rhode Islanders. None of the pitchers seemed to be able to find the plate, and everything looked good to the hard-hitting batters on both teams.

Worcester Tech was encountered next, and with Capt. Hudson in the box and every man on the team playing air-tight ball, the team emerged a 2-1 victor over our ancient rivals. The following week the team journeyed to Vermont and took the Norwich University team into camp. "Eke" Turner had a big day in the box and succeeded in shutting out the Vermonters without a score, while his team-mates pilled up four runs. The game with Vermont was called on account of rain in the fourth inning with the Green-Mountain Boys holding the advantage of one run.

Boston University was obliged to accept a 3-0 whitewashing at the hands of Capt. Hudson, and the following week Connecticut was defeated 8-5 with Turner in the box. The entire Rhode Island team seemed to have its eye on the ball, and the Connecticut hurlers all looked alike. The last two games of the season ended in defeats for the Rhode Island team, one at the hands of Brown and the other at the hands of Holy Cross. The latter team probably presented as strong a line-up as is ever seen in college baseball.

The 1920 season proved to be a fairly successful one even though we were defeated twice by Brown and once by Holy Cross. The defeats suffered at the hands of Brown, Tufts, and M. A. C., were soon followed by four straight victories, two of them being shut-outs, and these helped greatly to soothe the sting of previous defeats.

Baseball, 1921

About thirty prospective pill-chasers responded to the call for 1921 Baseball candidates. The following day the squad was raised to forty men, and batting practice was held on the campus. There seemed to be a scarcity of capable battery material. Capt. Al Hudson of the 1920 team was lost by graduation; Joe Murphy was lost to Holy Cross, and Frankie Greenhalgh was also graduated in June. The loss of these three men left a big gap in our team for the 1921 season. Coach Keaney had to rely mostly on the entering class and build up his team from the material which might be developed there.

Manager LaPerche arranged a game with the New London Submarine Base in order that the coach could get some idea as to just what he really did have upon which to build his team. The battery seemed to be the weakest spot, with Casey and Turner a possible combination. The fielders, however, were stronger, there being Capt. Nordquist, Reed, LaBree, Johnson, Whitaker, Coleman, Lucey, and Ellsworth, from last year's squad.

The team received a 9-4 setback at the hands of the sailors, but everyone had a chance to play. As everyone who made the trip played, Coach Keaney was able to pick out a good working machine to place before the Brunonians on April 16th. Turner and Edwards seemed to be the outstanding moundmen, with Casey regarded as a suitable backstop. With such men as Nordquist, Johnson, Kirby, Reed, and Coleman, to back them up, this was regarded as a well-balanced team sufficient to trim Brown. It was the first inning of the game that caused an unwarranted defeat for Rhode Island. At the end of the initial inning the score stood 9-0 in favor of Brown. However, struggling to overcome one of the unluckiest innings a Rhode Island team ever encountered, our team cornered six runs and held their opponents scoreless for the remainder of the game.

The following Saturday, Rhode Island was to play Connecticut Aggies on Kingston soil, but owing to a heavy downpour the game was postponed. On April 28th, the home series began with a 7-0 victory over Colby. The next day our team gained the decision over the University of Maine by a 11-4 score. On Saturday, M. A. C. handed us a 10-1 lacing. Edwards, pitching the Colby game, was in mid-season form, allowing only three hits. Turner pitched the first eight innings of the Maine game and was then replaced by Edwards who pitched good ball the remaining two innings. Kirby, playing centerfield, was the star of the game with three difficult catches to his credit, and it was his triple sacker that knocked in the first two runs of our seventh inning rally. The M. A. C. game turned out to be a one-sided affair. Edwards was again called upon to pitch, and after eight innings was replaced by Connolly.

Inclement weather caused the cancellation of two of the three games to be played the following week. Clark, and Boston University, which were scheduled on Friday and Saturday respectively were canceled. However, on Wednesday afternoon the team suffered its third defeat of the season at the hand of Worcester Polytech at Alumni Field, Worcester, to the tune of 8-4. Edwards lasted until the seventh inning when he was replaced by Turner. The following Monday, Rhode Island received a 9-3 decision over Northeastern College. Edwards and Turner again divided pitching honors.

The team next suffered another defeat at the hands of the University of Pittsburgh, the score being at the end of the game, 7-0 in Pittsburgh's favor. It was a hard-fought game throughout, but our team made costly errors.

On the 20th of May, our team journeyed to Storrs and gave the Connecticut Aggies an 8-4 handout. Edwards pitching his fourth game in five days, allowed seven hits and struck out ten men. The game was marked by fast playing on the part of the Rhode Islanders, with timely hitting accounting for many of the runs.

Track, 1920-'21

Rhode Island's overwhelming victory over Connecticut Aggies on May 28th marked the close of a highly successful track season. It was perhaps the most successful in the history of the college, in which the salient feature was the excellent spirit shown by the team throughout the year. This branch of athletics, which has received practically no attention since the war, has come to the front this year through a group of athletes who have had the "guts" to get down to work, and have "come through" mainly through their own love of the sport.

Rhode Island was represented at the B. A. A. games, held at the Boston Arena on Feb. 5th, by a strong team composed of three last year veterans—Totman, Smith, and O'Connell, and by two yearlings—Fort and Tower. Totman was held in reserve, and Smith, O'Connell, Tower, and Fort were pitted against the fast Colby and Vermont teams. Rhode Island's first two men practically held their own, but the fast pace set by the last two men of the Colby and Vermont teams was too much for the Rhode Island men and they gradually fell behind. Rhode Island put up a game fight, but were outclassed, the Colby team winning by one of the fastest relay times of the meet.

Interclass meets and indoor running kept interest alive during the winter months, and about the first of April the men donned their "togs" for the athletic field.

The first dual meet with Massachusetts was one that taxed our men to the limit. The Aggies presented a very fine aggregation, and our men came through with the meet by the close score of 65-53. Rhode Island took many of the dashes and field events, but was outrun in the mile and two-mile. Slate and Gray, the Aggie distance men, were able to take the honors in both these events.

Two weeks later, Connecticut Aggies were compelled to take the short end of a 124-36 score. The meet was a real walkaway for Rhode Island, many of the finals not being run off, due to the fact that the Aggies were shut out. Our men took all of the heats in some of the events, and of the sixteen events, captured thirteen firsts. The Aggies showed up best in the distance events when Wood of Connecticut uncorked winning sprints in the mile and two-mile, finishing by a good margin. The Aggies also took the javelin-throw, gaining first and second places.

Ray Hudson did well in both meets, being high-point man and making some pretty good time. Haslam and Fort each raised the college pole-vault record to 10 feet $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches when they both reached that height in practice. Chandler, Tower, and Totman were also prominent point-gatherers.

This year also marks the entry of a new event, the javelin-throw, into our meets. Although we were beaten by Connecticut in this event, there is need for no discouragement in this quarter. Fort won the javelin-throw in the interclass meet by a throw of 134 feet, which was four feet farther than that thrown by the best Connecticut man.

VARSITY TRACK SQUAD—1920-'21 SEASON

The Connecticut meet was the closing meet of one of the most successful track seasons Rhode Island has ever had.

CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM—1920-'21 SEASON

Cross-Country

1920

MANAGER ANDERSON
1921-'22 SEASON

The Cross-Country season opened with a victory that showed Rhode Island was once more to be well represented on the turf. Our first success this season was when our harriers outran Boston College on the Kingston four-and-one-half-mile course. Smith covered the course in the fast time of 25 minutes and 32 seconds, placing first, while Chandler and Bailey came in second and fourth respectively.

More interest was developed in this sport this year, due to the fact that the Athletic Association decided to award track letters to men placing among the first five in any cross-country meet. Although only one meet was held, the men came out every night and helped to build up a team which was able to come through with a decisive victory.

The Student Council was organized in 1904, with the purpose of endeavoring to stimulate a greater sense of responsibility among the students. There were six members which included two Seniors, two Juniors, and a representative from each of the lower classes.

In 1920 the Student Council was re-organized, and the membership increased to twenty. It has become much broader in its aspect, and through its committees, the Student Council is able to exert helpful influence in all the college activities.

This organization was formed for the purpose of fostering athletics at Rhode Island State College. Due to its active participation in this interest, decided reforms have been inculcated for the betterment of athletics. To the club, credit is given for the new method of the election of assistant managers. Heretofore, the Athletic Association was the body designated to elect the managers, but now the faculty coach, and R. I. Club have a certain number of votes in the election, thus making the best man in the field the most likely candidate for the office.

Eligibility to membership is restricted to the letter-men of the institution.

The purpose of Phi Delta is to arouse and stimulate an interest in drama. During the year, there are several opportunities for those who desire to become members, to "try out". The society is planning to run one large play and two minor productions this year. During the Spring of 1921, Phi Delta presented its first play, "Nothing But The Truth," which was very cleverly and successfully given.

This society has become one of the most active of our organizations on the Hill. Owing to the small numbers in the three branches of engineering, a combined society was deemed advisable. This move has brought wonderful results. The society is now able to select interesting speakers from the leading industrial plants of the East, giving the student an inside view of the practical workings of the engineering world.

Chemical Society

HAROLD CARLTON BLOXHAM, '22	President
ALVAN JASON ALLEN, '22	Treasurer
FRANK HOWARD TOTMAN, '22	Secretary
JAMES RICHARD HANLEY, '23	Librarian

In the Fall of 1920, under the leadership of O'Brien, '21, the society began what proved to be one of its best years. Through its influence, several speakers of high industrial and scientific rank have lectured to the student body.

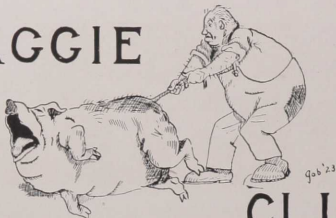

This year, the good work has been continued with the introduction of a new feature. Local interest has been aroused by a more active participation on the part of the members themselves. Several Upperclassmen have given lectures on subjects relating to their special subjects of study.

Professors Ince and Jackson and Dr. Burgess have given some very enlightening talks during the year.

The efforts of student, local, and "outside" speakers, have succeeded in making the Chem. Society a factor of influence to those interested in chemistry.

The society is open to any student interested in chemistry, but the officers are limited to the two upper classes. The meetings are held bi-weekly.

GEORGE L. PARKER, '23	Secretary
WILLIAM H. BROWN, '24	Treasurer

The Agricultural Club at Rhode Island State College was founded in 1907. Since the war it has made a name for itself and is the strongest society of its kind on the campus. Meetings are held the first and third Wednesdays of each month at which some faculty member or other foremost agriculturist delivers an address. It might be said that it is doing as much to boost Rhode Island State College as any department of the Institution. It holds an Annual Ball, the proceeds of which are spent in securing for the club meeting, speakers who are prominent in some phase of agriculture.

The club pays the expenses of the judging team to fairs in and out of the State. It is at these places that "Little Rhody" is heard from.

So popular has become the Annual Aggie Ball, that the faculty voted it should rank as one of the big dances of the year.

The Young Woman's Christian Union holds its meetings Thursday evenings at Davis Hall. Usually, some speaker addresses the gathering on a topic of current interest.

In September, the Y. W. C. U. with the Y. M. C. A. gave the usual annual reception of welcome for the Freshmen at Lippitt Hall.

Y. M. C. A.

JAMES H. HOLDEN, '22	President
SENIOR WADE, '22	Vice-President
WALTON B. BUTTERWORTH, '23	Treasurer
IRVING L. CHURCHILL, '22	Secretary

During the past two years, the Y. M. C. A. has co-operated with the Y. W. C. A. in giving the annual reception to the Freshmen, in the fall. The organization has also sent a delegate to the Conference at Silver Bay on Lake George, and has been instrumental in securing occasional speakers from outside the college. The outlook for the coming year is promising, with the prospect of a closer co-operation with the local church in promoting religious life among the men students.

The Glee Club was first organized in 1899 and since then has played a prominent part in the social life of the college. During the past year concerts were given in various parts of the State and the Club is fast regaining the prominence it held in pre-war days.

The Club owes a great deal to Dr. Jules Jordan, who has been director for a number of years.

Those students who take part in interclass and intercollegiate debates are eligible to membership in this society.

The Tau Kappa Alpha has charge of the interfraternity debates.

There have been two interfraternity debates this year. The first mentioned in each case won, as follows:

Beta Phi versus Zeta Pi Alpha

Lambda Chi Alpha versus Delta Alpha Psi

The Debating Society

JAMES HANLEY, '23

President

HAROLD ADAMS, '23

Secretary and Treasurer

The Debating Society has charge of the Freshman-Sophomore debate, and the intercollegiate debates

The Freshman-Sophomore debate took place March 1, 1922

Two intercollegiate debates have been planned—

R. I. S. C. versus M. A. C. at M. A. C., March 16, 1922

C. A. C. versus R. I. at R. I. S. C., March 16, 1922

The Debate Board

EDWIN COKER, '22

President

HAROLD ADAMS, '23

Secretary

The Debate Board consists of the officers of Tau Kappa Alpha and of the Debating Society.

This executive board makes the arrangements, and dates for the debates. It also secures the judges for the debates.

Program 1921—1922

December	7, 1921	PHIDELAH RICE, MONO-ACTOR IN "DAVID GARRICK"
January	5, 1922	THE HARP SINGERS
February	15, 1922	THE ZEDELER SYMPHONIC QUINTET
March	21, 1922	FRANKLIN BABB, LECTURER, "ONE HUNDRED PERCENT MAN"

The program of the year has been unusually attractive and interesting.

The first entertainment of the season was presented December 7th. Mr. Phidelah Rice, Mono-actor, of the Leland Powers' School, Boston, read Robinson's three-act comedy, "David Garrick". His excellent interpretation of the characters in the comedy won the admiration of his audience.

On January 5th, a very interesting musical number, "The Harp Singers", was presented.

The "Zedeler Symphonic Quintet" gave a very fine program of classical music on the evening of February 15th.

Mr. Franklin Babb, a well known New England lecturer, gave an inspiring lecture, "One Hundred Percent Man", on March 21st.

The Athletic Association

GEORGE A. CHANDLER, '23	President
RICHARD G. CASEY, '22	Vice-President
RAYMOND A. HUDSON, '23	Secretary

The Athletic Association to which all male students are eligible for membership, has as its function, in co-operation with the coach, and faculty advisors, the management of athletics. By the laws of its constitution, managers of sport are elected, letters awarded, and class contests are conducted.

The treasurer is a resident member of the Faculty Advisory Committee.

At the end of the basketball season of 1920—1921, the new system of electing managers, proposed by the R. I. Club, was put into effect. This new rule, in an attempt to provide a means of election on merit, states that "from the candidates eligible for election, two shall be chosen as assistant managers by the vote of the Athletic Association. One of these men, after having served one year as assistant managers, will be chosen for manager by one vote from the Athletic Association, one vote from the coach, one vote from the R. I. Club, and two votes from the faculty". As yet there has not been sufficient time to prove the worth of this method, but in theory it is a decided advance.

Deceiving

FROSH:—Who's that? A book agent?

OLD TIMER:—Nope, Prexy.

Must Have Kipped 'Em

TEACHER (looking over marks):—Johnny, I see you're behind again.

JOHNNY (blushing):—If I had another safety pin you wouldn't.

Mixed Drinks

TOWER:—What have we got to drink tonight, water or milk?

ANDREWS:—Half-and-half.

'Tis the Truth That Hurts

PA WEBSTER (To Senior C. E.'s):—You boys don't seem to know anything.

PASTORINI:—Dogs always take after their masters.

Careful Joe

DR. CARROLL:—Girls under sixteen years of age are not responsible for any contracts and so on, entered into with men.

KINDER:—Under sixteen?

DR. CARROLL:—Yes, under sixteen.

BARTON (in loud whisper):—You're safe, Joe.

Aggie Philosophy

Some say Kingston is a one-horse town—says the stable hand—but they wouldn't think so if they had my job.

FIRST CO-ED:—I see Lambda Chi Alpha won the Loving cup from P I K.

SECOND CO-ED:—Yes, they are better at it, aren't they?

Attention, Lucy T:

FIRST CO-ED:—Oh, how ghostly white your lips are!

IMPORTED STOCK:—Why, didn't you go out at intermission?

CASEY:—I spent most of last night in the gutter.

JOE:—Why didn't you get up?

CASEY:—Couldn't, two brothers were holding me down.

JOE:—Who were they?

CASEY:—Haig and Haig.

A Week-End of Mechanics

Comedy by L. DeMopus

TIME—Friday, Oct. 1921

PLACE—R. I. S. C.

ACT I SCENE I (Room 26, Lippitt Hall)

PROF. WALES—Good morning, children.

CLASS (in unison)—Good morning, teacher.

Business of roll call followed by a bit of rare comedy when "Bone" Christensen gets his foot caught as Lanza closes the door at 8:05 A. M.

PROF.—All those not having done an hour and a half or can safely say they know something of the work may leave now (Prof. waves his right thumb at the door.)

Class registers innocence and at the moment seem to be hard of hearing.

PROF.—DeMopus, you explain F-MA in such a way that even Joe Nedo would understand. Let's get right down to brass tacks, now.

Fifty minutes later—Prof.—Never mind the rest of that explanation, DeMopus, the class will copy this test for the week-end.

ACT II, SCENE 2 Phi Kappa Phi House (Saturday afternoon, 1:15 P. M., DEMOPUS—Well, methinks I must start on my week-end, what say, Elmer?

ELMER—(registering enthusiasm) Yea, let's; hey, Sid, let's go.

SID—Oui monkeer.

Nothing heard but rattling of mechanics book leaves.

ELMER (talking softly, as though thinking aloud)—Le's see, by intergrating I get 1.03 lbs. for the length of that beam.

SID (singing to himself)—I get 1.025 lbs., so I guess I'll play a little basketball.

DEMOPUS (thinking)—Kind of low, but .987 is nearer right.

Business of putting away pencils, paper, etc.

SCENE III East Hall (6:00 P. M.)

ELMER—Say, George, give us some beans, and ask Mac has he done his study problem for this week.

MAC—Yes, I have, did you get 1.03 lbs? Oh, excuse me, Elmer, I didn't mean to talk about our beloved week-end.

ELMER—Why, Mac, that's perfectly all right, we was talking over study problems which is diffrent, hey Sid?

SID—I didn't hear what you were talking about, but er-r-r did you say 1.03?

DEMOPUS—Speaking of abstract numbers, don't you think .987 is much more euphonius?

CHORUS (Sid, Mac, Elmer)—No.

SCENE IV Same as II—Sunday, 10:40 P. M.

ELMER (rousing Sid from noisy slumber on Couch L)—Hey, Sid, hey, Sid, waken, we must complete our dear week-end.

SID (registering disgust and hurt dignity)—Damn these week-ends, anyway, they interfere with a man's college education something fierce.

Quiet reigns with exception of much turning of mechanics book leaves. Lights blink, denoting 10:45 P. M.

SID (over Elmer's shoulder)—Just like mine, let's go to bed.

Exeunt, loud singing. Sid and Elmer.

DEMOPUS (2:15 A. M.)—Well, those are done, me for the hay.

SCENE V Same as I (Room 26, Lippitt's Hall)

ELMER—Hey, Sid, what did you get? I got 95%.

SID—You got me beat. I got 93.

DEMOPUS—I got 18.

CHORUS (Mac, Sid and Elmer)—You did?

SID—Let us have meeting this afternoon and abolish week-end tests. Lanza expects too much.

Curtain.

Jokes

PROF.:—Girls do be careful.

CO-ED:—We are, that's why all the boys go down the line.

ED:—Dance?

CO-ED:—Sure.

ED:—Smoke?

CO-ED:—Sure.

ED:— ?

CO-ED:Oh, you fresh thing!

Goat Grabbers

The jay who insists on talking about the good times he had with your best girl last summer.

PROMISING YOUNG AGGIE IN SEARCH OF KNOWLEDGE:—Where's the hen-barn?

WISE UPPERCLASSMAN:—Down by the cow-coop.

Mercury Arc Reflections

PROF. COGGINS (to Casey who is staring absently at him):—What are you looking at, Casey?

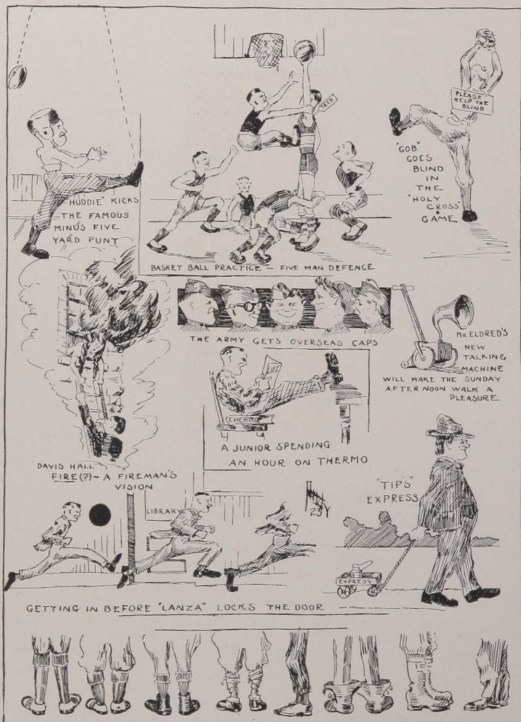

K. C.:—Nothing.

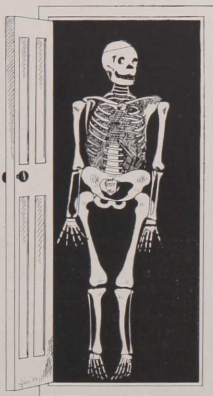

COGGY:—Well, I don't know but what you're right.

PROF. ANDERSON (explaining a problem in E. E. IV.):—Well, the first part of this problem is easy; it's simply drawing a curve.

WOOLEY:—Sure, that's a graft.

HOLDEN (in Military Science after Capt. Church tells class he wants a written answer):—Do you want this verbal or oral?

The Skeleton Closet

Have you been keeping a skeleton locked in the closet? If you have had a "snap" taken that you wouldn't have the world see for one-hundred bucks, an arm or something—skip these next few pages because for once GRIST has unlocked the door and allowed a favored few of this mighty world to view some horrible examples of photographic art. Our scrubs have delved into many "Mem" books to unearth these secluded treasures. If the write-up is too hot and causes a little entropy break-out under the "Arrows", never mind, just remember that you are fortunate in being immortalized, and if you think there are a lot of snaps that have got these beat, never mind, we couldn't find them. We are sorry there aren't more, but here is what we have—throw open the door and see what you will see.

Ah, how do you do? Grant Hamblet is mah name. I'm studying to be a civil engineer; I'm darn' good with a shovel already. Pretty smooth letter I've got on my sweater isn't it? I got that playing football on the team that lost a whole season. Of course, I don't go around looking like this every day—generally worse. Dick Lucey gave this picture to GRIST and just as soon as I found out, I was real angry because I told Richard that any time people came around wanting a picture of me, to take that one where I got my uncle's dress suit on. I'm telling you, folkses, I make a swell looking waiter.

CHORUS—Oh! the mean things, why did they put this picture of us in GRIST? Honest, we never meant for anyone to see this snap. I told Ruth to be extremely careful while this picture was being taken. I was scared to death for fear she'd fall in and get the suit all wet; it was only made for sand bathing. Ella said when we posed for this picture that we ought to look pretty, so I did. I have to admit that I look pretty good, but Ruth looks terrible, doesn't she? Of course, that isn't her real face, she's just making believe that she's in throes of death, but anyway we admit we're good looking.

My name's Scorpio. They call me "Skip" for short. I come from Federal Hill where they knock 'em down and drag 'em out. I'm a bad man. Didya ever see me dance?, or hear me sing? I have a great affinity for precious stones, and a weakness for buying victrola records—me and Joe Kinder. I've got a flock of trained terrapins down cellar, that is, I did have, but somebody wanted to wash clothes and threw 'em out. I wear $10 union suits, $12 silk shirts, $17 shoes and tailor-made suits. Well, ho-hum—guess I'll go in and sleep awhile.

Gee, it was cold last night! I lay awake shivering all night. I had to reinforce my pajamas with a pair of woolen socks and an army shirt. I had another suit of pajamas, much warmer than these—all in one piece—the fellows call 'em my diving suit, and somebody hid 'em on me. Guess I'll go wake up the gol-dinged janitor and get B. T. U.'S around here. I could have slept till noon, but I gotta first hour class.

Hello, fellows! No horse now; don't we look the nuts in these rompers. I told "Pink" when I bought these "golfies" from Siegel that they could be tailored to fit, so I did the job myself, oh don't look surprised, why shouldn't I do a good job? The Boys say I'm a tailor. When we handed this picture to GRIST I felt that it would be a good chance to show the boys that somebody down here could look just as keen as the fellows at Brownse's College. I heard Pink say when he borrowed the sweater he's got on that he wished he could get one with a high neck like mine so's it would hide his muddy collar, but I told him not to worry because his wasn't as bad as mine, anyway. Well, we'll have to leave now because we've got some mechanics to do, not that it worries us much, but we got it.

Look, fellows ain't I got fun? This picture has been used in a lotta famous art galleries as the personification of muscular grace and beauty. No kiddin', though, haven't I got a peach of a shape? I didn't have time to comb my hair, but just note the intelligent expression. I'm a quaint character, sort of a vagrant musician—yes. I play the fiddle. I'm crazy about jazz and egg omelettes. I'm an all-round society man—take in all the prize fights and bull-throwing contests.

I used to play baseball. You know I throw from the port side. They used to call me "Smoky Joe Kinder", but other interests claim me now. Well, I'm tired of sitting up here so I guess I'll fall in. So long!

How It's Done

The rushing season was drawing to a close. The time was 6:20 p. m. The place—East Hall dining room. The deafening clatter caused by members of the Soup Spillers' Union removing the concrete plates and shaving mugs from the scene of the late hand-to-mouth battle, was at its height. A motley crew of rushers grouped themselves around the doorway and grabbed promising Freshmen as they emerged.

The first line charged and marched away triumphantly with their bewildered captives. Those rushers who were not well versed in football or military tactics stood empty-handed, stared at each other, and solemnly passed their index fingers across their throats in a suggestive gesture of defeat.

Later in the Hi Phli Raspberry House a Hi Phli rusher was spieling his line to his unsophisticated captive. The latter did not have a chance. His query as to how and where to apply for membership in a fraternity was totally ignored as the Hi Phlier waxed eloquent.

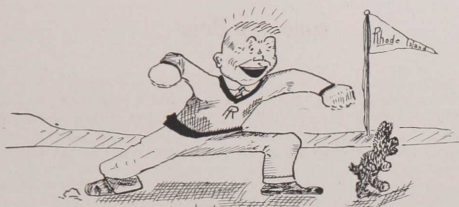

"Ya know we've sized y'up. We like the way ya part yer hair—the way ya dance. I think you'd fit fine with th' bunch here. Ya know you've gotta live four years with the crowd ya pick out—and adaptability—ya know that counts. We have the best frat on the campus. Why just compare the fellows here with any other group. It can't be done.

"Look at our Alumni. There's Mickey Doovine. He was on the boxing squad in '17—big man. That counts. There's Smith. He was President of the Chess Club. He's in the sugar business now. Raises cain down in Cuba. Those things count. We rate pretty high financially. locally, and nationally. We've gotta strong chapter in the University of Southern California. Ya might never go there, of course, but it counts.

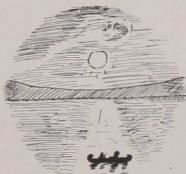

"I could tell ya a whole lot about some of these frats around here. Why look at the bunch of booze-hounds in the I Tappa Keg House—but that's slingin' mud, and we never sling mud here. An' if ya need work, we can arrange that O. K. We always have plenty of work for the Freshmen we pledge. Ya know ya fit here an' ya wanna go where ya belong".

Seven-thirty bell rings.

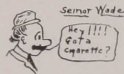

"Well, be good. Just think it over. See ya tomorrer night? Gotta date? How about Wednesday? Thursday? Friday?, then? Well you'll be here all year—come over any time. G'dnight".

Jokes

PROF. INCE (talking to Seniors about soap):—It doesn't make much difference to us, because we don't use much of it.

CAPT. CHURCH:—Harrington, what formation would you use?

BUCK:—Give column of clotheslines.

SWAHN (in Economics, explaining the difference between rent and interest):
Rent is what you pay out, and interest is what you take in.

JICKEY MOORHOUSE (in Military Science):—Capt. Church, what will I do with this third platoon?

BARTON pipes out:—What would they do with them in the Jickey army, Sid?

SID:—They wouldn't have odd numbers like that.

HOLDEN (in Military Science):—Who looks over the dead men in the army?
I know in civil life they call a Corona.

BARTON (discussing ads in M. E. XXVI):—How about when they put a coupon in the paper?

CONNOLLY:—That's bait for fish.

DR. CARROLL:—What kind of fish?

BERNI:—Suckers.

KID CHANDLER:—Say, Prof, what's H2O4?

McGUIRE:—There's no such formula. Don't use it for anything.

'ARRY:—Don't you ever wash yourself?

PA (looking at Kulasewski and speaking to Pastorini):—Now, Paderewski—

DR. JAECK:—Gaddes, what is the word for "read?"

GADDES:—Lire.

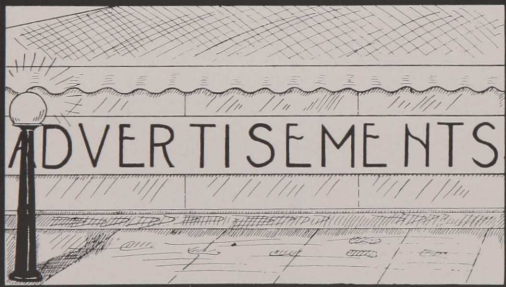

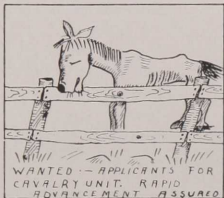

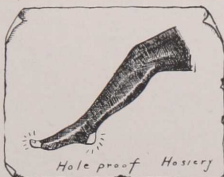

DR. JAECK:—No, dire.

GADDES:—Oh, you stop!

WELL, PROMPTLY AND
REASONABLY DONE

HEARD AT THE WAITERS' TABLE

Hey Stretch, your apron string's in your soup.

STRETCH:—I don't care, it's dirty anyway.

That the engineering course is very conducive to absent-mindedness was well shown recently when Andrews divested for basketball and put on his pajamas instead.

Hey, Gob, where'd you get the collar.

EDWARDS:—The Arrow people pay me to wear it.

You earn the money.

STRETCH:—Coach, I left my suit in the locker.

The A. B.:—You goldinged fried egg, your brains are in your shoes.

GEE:—Where are they?

STRETCH:—In the locker.

ANDERSON:—Say, Gladys, can you write shorthand?

G.:—No, I can't.

ANDY:—That's one of the requirements of a modern wife.

EDWARDS:—Sure, all wives should be able to take their husband's dictation.

WHO'D J'MEAN, DOC?

RUTH ABBOTT (making report in English):—This report is taken from a book by I. B.—er—

Voice from the Rear:—I. B. Dumb.

TURKEYNECK:—You be who?

RUTH:—I. B. Richmond.

CAPT. HOLDEN:—Assume your perspective positions:

COACH:—You can't do that, it's a fragrant breach of the rules.

Or as the Connecticut Aggies say: "We don't use authorities, we use our common sense."

Our idea of nothing at all is a Freshman who'll take a Student Council member's co-ed out for a stroll.

COACH:—Play the ball! Play the ball! What are you going to play?

FROSH:—Forward.

The guy who said a woman should be the shrine rather than the pilgrim had nothing on Coach Keaney when he bawled out in a girl's game, "Foul, for playing the man."

Lila Berry did not realize the other day that the fellows in the Experimental Engineering lab were weighing barrels of water when Joe shouted out "Four hundred, eighty-nine pounds and thirteen ounces."

OUR claim to your consideration lies in the fact that we have applied to our own business the thought contained in this quotation from one of the world's greatest thinkers and practical workers.

If there is anything attractive beyond the ordinary, in the page arrangement, cover decoration, presswork, and general harmony which distinguish our work, be assured it has not been due to chance.

We leave nothing to chance.
Every line, page, volume, as it comes from our establishment, is the result of a carefully laid,
conscientiously executed plan.

The thought and the supervision which our system provides is your guarantee of excellence.

If you have anything to be printed, write us; if we undertake it, we will do it well.
